Funeral of General Washington.

A late number of the New York Citizen contains the following relic:

From a curiously old and well preserved number of the Ulster County Gazette, dated January 4, 1800, and published at Kingston, N. Y., by Samuel Freer & Son, we make the following extracts relative to the death and funeral of General George Washington, "first in peace, first in war, and first in the hearts of his countrymen." The paper is curious in many respects, containing advertisements for the recovery of fugitive slaves in the pious State of New York, &c. But the chief points of interest in this very curious paper relate to the death of General Washington, and from the third page we extract the following account of his funeral as related in a letter from Georgetown:

WASHINGTON ENTOMBED.

Georgetown, December 26.

On Wednesday last, the mortal part of Washington the Great—the Father of his country and the Friend of man—was consigned to the tomb, with solemn honors and funeral pomp.

A multitude of persons assembled, from many miles round, at Mount Vernon, the choice abode and last residence of the illustrious chief. There were the groves, the spacious avenues, the beautiful and sublime scenes, the noble mansion—but alas! the august inhabitant was now no more. The great soul was gone. His mortal part was there, indeed; but ah! how affecting! how awful the spectacle of such worth and greatness, thus to mortal eyes fallen! Yes! fallen! fallen!

In the long and lofty portico, where oft the hero walked in all his glory, now lay the shrouded corpse. The countenance still composed and serene, seemed to depress the dignity of the spirit, which lately dwelt in that lifeless form. There, those who paid the last sad honors to the benefactor of his country, took an impressive, a farewell view.

On the ornament, at the head of the coffin, was inscribed SURGE AD JUDICIUM; about the middle of the coffin, GLORIA DEO—and on the silver plate:

GENERAL

GEORGE WASHINGTON,

Departed this life, on the 14th of December, 1799, Æt. 68.

Between three and four o'clock—the sound of artillery from a vessel in the river firing minute guns, awoke afresh our solemn sorrow—the corps was moved; a band of music, with mournful melody, melted the soul into all the tenderness of woe.

The procession was formed and moved in the following order:

Cavalry,
Infantry,
Guard,
(with arms reversed),
Music,
Clergy,
The General's Horse, with his saddle, holsters and pistols,

Pall Bearers:		Pall Bearers:
Colonels Simms, Ramsay, Payne,	CORPSE.	Colonels Gilpin, Marsteller, Little.

Mourners,
Masonic Brethren,
Citizens.

When the procession had arrived at the bottom of the elevated lawn, on the banks of the Potomac, where the family vault is placed, the cavalry halted, the infantry marched toward the Mount and formed their lines—the Clergy, the Masonic Brothers, and the Citizens, descended to the vault, and the funeral service of the church was performed. The firing was repeated from the vessel in the river, and the sounds echoed from the woods and hills around.

Three general discharges by the infantry, the cavalry, and eleven pieces of artillery which lined the banks of the Potomac back of the vault, paid the last tribute to the entombed Commander-in-Chief of the Armies of the United States and to the departed hero.

The sun was now setting. Alas! the Son of Glory was set forever. No! the name of Washington—the American President and General—will triumph over Death! The unclouded brightness of his Glory will illuminate the future ages!

It is observable that the Gazette has no editorial notice whatever of the death of ex-President Washington; and but for the following "Lines by a Young Lady," there would be no other notice taken of the affair, so far as the editors of the journal under notice may be concerned. These lines, however, are far superior to the average standard of newspaper poetry in that age; and it might be curious and interesting if some great grandchild of the then poetical "Young Lady," would now step forward and establish an inherited copywright in the following poem:

ON THE DEATH OF GENERAL WASHINGTON.

BY A YOUNG LADY.

What means that solemn dirge, that strikes my ear?
What mean those mournful sounds—why shines the tear?
Why toll the bells the awful knell of fate?
Ah!—why those sighs that do my fancy sate!

Where'er I turn, the general gloom appears,
Those mourning badges all my soul with fears;
Hark! Yonder rueful noise!—'tis done! 'tis done!
The silent tomb invades our Washington!

Must virtues so exalted, yield their breath?
Must bright perfection find relief in death?
Must mortal greatness fall?—a glorious name!
What then is riches, honor and true fame?

The august chief, the father and the friend,
The generous patriot—Let the muse commend;
Columbia's glory and Mount Vernon's pride,
There lies enshrined with numbers at his side!

There let the sigh, respondent from the breast,
Heave in rich numbers!—let the glowing zest
Of tears refulgent beam with grateful love;
And sable mourning our affliction prove.

Weep!—kindred mortals—weep! No more you'll find
A man so just, so pure, so firm in mind;
Rejoicing Angels, hail the heavenly sage!
Celestial Spirits greet the Wonder of the Age!

SILVER CORD.—This mine is said to be showing a body of rich ore in the third level, and also on the face of the second. There is no doubt of the fact that the ore taken from this ledge has yielded at the enormous rate of $2,800 per ton. The mine is rich, and if managed in mining and milling so as to work nothing but quartz and save the metal, it must soon place the Company in a prosperous condition.—Owyhee Avalanche.

PERSONAL.—President Johnson called upon George Peabody, the banker, and thanked him personally for his munificent donation, just made of a million of dollars for the education of the young men of the Southwest.

Indian Affairs.

It is a well known fact—established by the severest and saddest experience—that the Indians of the plains are armed with the latest and most improved weapons and have accumulated large stores of ammunition. Instead of being simply armed, as formerly, with bows and arrows and crude spears barbed with flint or old iron, nearly every warrior has his Spencer or Sharp's rifle and one or more revolvers. The humanitarians who shed doleful tears over the woes and persecutions of the "poor savage" and who piously regard the slaughter and scalping of white men and women as merely a "dispensation of an all wise Providence," while they cannot deny the fact that the Indian is well armed, are unable to account for it. It was openly charged, and we believe never denied, that at the time of the farcical treaty made with a few renegade chiefs at Laramie in the summer of 1865, there was sold and bartered to the red men large quantities of arms and ammunition. It was said, too, that the sutler at that post drove a thriving trade with the Indians, in these articles. At all events, if not with the sanction, at least without attempts of interference on the part of the Indian Agents and Treaty Commissioners, this illicit traffic went on almost without efforts at concealment. Here were the painted savages, fresh from the war path and reeking with the blood of slaughtered emigrants, receiving presents from the Government, and buying from white traders who were permitted to go freely among them, arms, powder and lead to equip themselves for future operations. The whole thing was disgraceful to the Government and an outrage upon the western people, whose lives were jeoparded and trifled with.

But we are not compelled to rely upon vague rumor for proof as to how the savage prepares for his long and bloody wars. Major Douglas, an officer of the United States army, in command of Fort Dodge, on the plains, has written an official letter to General Grant, stating that Bogy, the Commissioner of Indian Affairs at Washington, "authorized his agents to issue revolvers and ammunition to the Indians." He also says that white traders abundantly supply arms and war material to the Sioux, Cheyennes and Arrappahoes, who are at war with the white settlers. Some of these very tribes, to whom these arms were sold, he says, not over a month or six weeks previously massacred the detachment of nearly a hundred United States soldiers, almost in sight of Fort Phil. Kearny.

These are a few of the facts which have been presented to Congress and which, it may be supposed, have occasioned the presentation of the bill to place the whole subject of Indian affairs in the control of the War Department, where it legitimately and properly belongs. Whether Congress will speedily act upon this bill, of course, cannot be known. That body some time since, in consequence of the foregoing and other charges against Commissioner Bogy, appointed a Committee of Investigation into these matters, and, notwithstanding the facts presented, it is said that five out of the nine members sanctioned what the Commissioner had done in the premises. These five immaculates deserve to be better known than by simply recording them as the majority of the House Committee on Indian Affairs, so we transcribe their names. They are as follows: Ross, of Illinois; Windom, of Minnesota; McIndoe of Wisconsin; Dennison, of Pennsylvania, and Hubbard, of Iowa. That these members from the Western States of Wisconsin, Minnesota and Iowa, whose people are so deeply interested in Indian matters and conversant with the subject, could be brought to sanction so nefarious and outrageous a thing as the authorized selling of arms and ammunition to hostile savages, seems incredible. Certainly it is disgraceful to the States they represent.

On the other hand, it is, perhaps, equally strange, yet far more creditable, that the Senator from Massachusetts, Mr. Wilson, should have comprehended the evil and had the sagacity to propose the rightful remedy, by introducing his bill to transfer the Indian Bureau from the Interior to the War Department. It is to be hoped that Congress will adopt the views of the Massachusetts Senator instead of heeding those of the Representatives from the West, who seem to have been inoculated with the Doolittle-humanitarian-sentimental views.

Lewis' Process.—A method of working ore so as to save all the precious metals, should be eagerly sought by all. It may be impossible to save all, but there being so much room for improvement, it is reasonable that perfection should be more nearly attained. Superintendents of reduction works can hardly be credited with true faithfulness who do not devote much of their attention to saving the metals at one working and at the least possible expense. Mr. Lewis, of the Cosmos Co., has been and is now studiously applying a new process with rich results. Flint District ores which yield by common mill process only $52 per ton, give $404 by the process of Mr. Lewis. This great advance in yield is the result of saving the sulphurets. The same ore when roasted only give a product of $228 per ton. The process of saving the sulphurets is much easier than the old method and avoids roasting and amalgamation in pans. Rebellious ores in this camp which have given small results, and involved heavy cost for chemicals and large losses in quicksilver, have yielded under this new treatment at the rate of $116 per ton, from second-class, and $68 from third-class. The same process is not applied to all ores. It is varied according to the ores to be treated, but the same success is uniformly gained. However base the ores, the gold and sulphurets and quicksilver are saved. Earnest and intelligent application has brought about these actual results, and upon a scale sufficiently large to make it certain that a most important step forward in mining economy has been taken.—Owyhee Avalanche.

Washington, February 23.

The Senate, to-day, passed a bill to prohibit the payment of any claims against the Government to persons who took part in the [illegible] the payment of [illegible] to those Army officers who went over to the South, many of whom [illegible] up to the date of their dismissal.

There is no doubt the President will return the Military Government bill, with his veto, on Wednesday next. It is expected that his message will propose a plan of Reconstruction which the President would approve. It is further understood that such plan is essentially the one offered in the Blaine amendment.

Washington, February 23.

The President has approved the bill abolishing the office of Superintendent of Public Printing, and providing for the election of a Congressional Printer by the Senate.

Edward D. King is confirmed as Consul to China.

Washington, February 23.

The House considered the Appropriation bill in Committee of the Whole. Among the appropriations is one of $15,000 for a light-house at Point Reyes, California.

The House subsequently resumed the consideration of the bill making valid all acts and proclamations of the President for the suppression of the Rebellion. The bill was passed—96 to 29.

Washington, February 24.

It is in contemplation by the Union members elect to the 40th Congress to hold a caucus during the present week to nominate officers of the House. It is certain that Colfax will be re-elected Speaker. McPherson, the present Clerk, will probably also be re-elected.

The Chronicle to-day says that it is no longer a secret that many Republicans called on the President to urge him to sign the Military Government bill, and that many of those who have supported his policy have advised the same course, while a still larger class, and among them certain Reconstruction leaders, have recommended that his veto should be sent in early in the week, so as to afford time to Congress, and that in giving his objections to the bill he should take care to state that he will honestly execute the law when it is duly enacted.

New York, February 24.

The Bremen steamship Deutchland, from Southampton with dates to the 13th inst., has arrived.

The London Times, speaking editorially of the Ministry's explanations touching the Reform question, says the hope of settling the matter at this session of Parliament depends upon the resolution of the House of Commons to take it out of the hands of the Ministry, and carry it through by their agency rather than by their guidance.

The Saxony portion of Transylvania is reported as being favorable to a union with Hungary.

Revolutionary pamphlets have been circulated in Pesth, but without effect.

The Senate of the Danubian Principalities have agreed to the abolition of the tobacco monopoly.

Mazzini's renunciation of his seat in the Italian Deputies has been accepted, he having declared that he could not sit in that body consistently with his Republican principles.

The Mohammedans in Kiang-si had captured four towns.

New Orleans, February 24.

San Luis Potosi dates to the 6th inst., (received at Brownsville on the 20th,) state that an engagement took place, Feb. 24th, in a defile known as Legallinoa, between the forces of Miramon, under Castillo, and 1,000 of Escobado's command, under General Roche. The latter (Liberals) were defeated with a loss of 300 or 400 killed, among them Gen. Herrera Zarraro and Colonel Marrias. Most of the remainder of the Liberal force were either wounded or taken prisoners—only five escaped. After the victory, Castillo was seriously threatened by Caravajal while endeavoring to reach Queretaro by forced marches.

Escobado ordered all volunteer foreigners found in Miramon's army to be shot for depredations committed at Zacatecas; Joaquin Miramon, a brother of Miguel, was among those shot.

Ortega remained at Santillo under arrest.

The official journal at Monterey, Feb. 15th, says the Governor of the State is occupied with preparations for the departure of the French troops.

The Austrian and Belgian prisoners at Matamoras are to be exchanged for Mexicans to be brought to that place by the French frigate Paligethon. The order for their departure is now awaited from Escobado.

New York, February 25.

Files by the steamship Deutchland show by official Parliamentary statements, and Police and Military reports, that the Fenian movement against Chester Castle was a very serious and alarming affair, undertaken after due deliberation, and carried to the verge of completion with rapidity and skill. An Irish-American officer serving in the Fenian ranks, betrayed the secret to the authorities, and saved, in all probability, great trouble in England. The Chief of Police of Chester states that a Fenian Military Directory, consisting of fifty men, mainly from New York, hold regular sittings in the chief towns of the United Kingdom.

In the House of Commons, Feb. 11th, immediately after the conclusion of the great Reform meeting in Agricultural Hall, London, Mr. Disraeli submitted the Derby Reform plan to a very impatient assembly. He said the Cabinet disliked the treatment of the subject as a party one, and would consequently proceed by resolution. On the 25th of February he would take the opinion of the House on a series of resolutions which would affirm what should be the character of a new bill for the extension of the franchise. The bill must be in accordance with the English Constitution, and avoid the predominance of any class. It would be proposed that rating should be the basis for voting, and a measure would be introduced to remedy inequalities in rating. No borough would be disfranchised. A boundary commission would be issued with a view to eliminating the urban element from the county constituences. Disraeli concluded by moving that on the 25th of February the House should go into Committee to consider the Reform Bill of 1832.

New York, February 25.

The Times' special says there are good grounds for stating that the President will send in a veto of the Military Government bill next Wednesday.

It is possible the President will let the bill regulating the tenure of office become a law without his signature.

General Grant is reported, on good authority, as saying that he regards the Military Government bill as very unwise legislation. The members of the Cabinet, with one exception, are decidedly opposed to the bill.

The report of the Committee to investigate frauds on the Revenue will be made to-day. It will show the distillery frauds to be far greater than anyone had conceived, and that the modes of their perpetration were such as almost to defy the law.

The fate of the House bill [illegible] payment of compound interest notes in [illegible] greenbacks is extremely doubtful.

The President has submitted the Tenure of Office bill to the Attorney [illegible] [illegible] that it is unconstitutional [illegible] One hundred and fifty [illegible] of New York have signed [illegible] President Johnson [illegible] Government bill.

The fate of the Legal Tender bill is [illegible] in. Senator Wilson will propose a [illegible] providing that it shall be unlawful for National Banks [illegible] debts made in [illegible] National Bank. [illegible] has caused nearly [illegible] Wall street.

The Senate will reject the proposition to raise the position of Sanford, our representative to Brussels, to a full Mission.

The World's special says the arrival of Governor Andrew in Washington revives the rumor that he is to have a seat in the Cabinet.

The friends of the Tariff bill consider it as virtually killed.

The special committee on Revenue favor a reduction of the whisky tax, but the Committee of Ways and Means are very much opposed to it.

Berlin, February 24.

The session of the first Parliament of the North German States was formally opened yesterday. The King of Prussia and the Royal Family, and Count Bismarck, were present. The King, in his speech from the Throne, said he was encircled as no German Prince had been for ages. All hopes for the future welfare of the nation now rested on the accomplished fact of a united Germany. He recommended the people to form a new Constitutional Union, which would be defensive in its character, and give unity, liberty and power to Fatherland.

A dispatch from Athens says that intelligence had reached that city announcing the safe arrival of a Greek war steamer at the Island of Candia.

A telegram from Naples reports that a magazine filled with gunpowder exploded at Posilippo, near that city, and that a number of lives were lost by the disaster.

Financial Mysteries.

Under this head the New York Tribune has the following remarks:

The Government of the United States owes in all the round sum of $2,543,349,748, over and above the sum of $142,423,791, which it held on the 1st inst., whereof $97,354,603 were coin. We can imagine no sound reason for holding so large a reserve, at a cost to our heavily taxed people of several millions per annum. Our course would be to resume Specie Payment—not by-and-by, nor soon, but now—this very day. The Treasury owes $430,163,803 payable on demand—about thrice the amount of its cash on hand—a little over four times the amount of its coin. Its credit is so good that our Banks have deposited nearly Twenty Millions in Gold in its vaults, taking therefor Certificates that draw no interest. Now we maintain that the Banks of this country were never so able to maintain Specie Payment as the Treasury is to-day. Let it simply resume, thereby effacing the distinction between Legal Tender and Coin, and evince a steadfast purpose to fight it out on that line, and it has nothing to fear. A large share of its Greenbacks are held by banks, to whom they will then be equal to Gold, while they need every one of them as a reserve for the current redemption of their own issues. Let the Treasury resume, and thereupon receive Greenbacks as Gold, and there will be no serious demand for Gold; for the consequent falling off in importations will check the demand for Specie to pay balances to Europe. We need not contract—we may even allow $100,000,000 more of National Bank notes to be issued to new banks located in the South, where there are now few or none. Our bonds held in Europe would be held all the firmer and at higher prices if word was flashed along the Cable that the United States, deeming themselves solvent, had resumed Specie Payment. And, as Greenbacks would still be a legal tender, no solvent Bank need be troubled about Resumption. Every Greenback held on the Pacific slope and in the Rocky Mountains will be better than Gold from the moment that we resume.

But if we are not to resume, then let us sell our surplus Gold and thus reduce our debt at least One Hundred Millions. If we do not mean to use it, why hoard it? Let us have some good out of it, one way or another.

New Kind of Gas.—The new woolen mill is to be light with gas made on the premises, of pine wood and bones, by Ensley's process. The inventor claims that out of one cord of pine wood and half a ton of bones he can make 15,000 feet of gas, 40 bushels of charcoal, 50 gallons of tar, 12 gallons of turpentine, 770 pounds of bone-black, and half a barrel of ammonia. To do this requires three-quarters of a cord of hard wood and the labor of several men. It is claimed that the charcoal, tar and bone-black will pay all expenses, leaving the gas, ammonia and turpentine for profit. We have before us a copy of the January number of the Journal of the Board of Arts and Manufactures for Upper Canada, containing a leading article which states that the town of Cobourg, Canada, is now lighted with Ensley gas, and that there is "no town in America so well lighted as Cobourg," and the gas is supplied to the citizens of that town at a cost of $2 50 per thousand feet. Montreal, Ottawa, Belleville, Dundas, Ingersoll, and Prescott, and various American towns, were negotiated in December to have Ensley gas works erected, and a contract had been made for the erection of a gas retort and holder to supply Chickering's piano factory at Boston with all the gas that is there needed.—Alta California.

More Women Wanted.—Next to the introduction of capital for the development of the mines, the capital element of femininity is most needed in the west, to civilize the Territories and prepare them for admission as sovereign States! This will be done by a sensible (or census) course of action, as you choose to have it. There's many a forlorn-looking cabin in Colorado which would smile as cozy as a grand chateau, were there more true women in the western market. By women we mean women (not dolls or "dressy ladies" so-called,) with hearts and brains and sense and souls to any—who can cook a miner's dinner or coquette with the keys of her piano, whichever may be needed to make a home and husband happy. Our mountain boys want the other halves of themselves, and it is quite time they had 'em. Hence, let it be told in Gotham, and published in the streets of Lowell, that there's a cot with a man in it for as many girls of the grade aforesaid as may come to Colorado's golden mountains!—Colorado Times.

The Omaha Republican of February 11th says: From a gentleman recently in from the west we learn that the troops which are arriving there are being rapidly distributed and stationed at the various points of importance where Indian attacks, if made, would be most likely to interrupt the overland travel and affect the most injury. We are glad to see that it is so, and hope that the encouragement which has been given that a sufficient number of troops will be sent westward to protect all the settlements and promptly put down any contemplated outbreak will be fulfilled.

McCracken's Letter.

The New York [illegible] of the 7th instant, comments as follows on the McCracken letter:

[illegible] George W. McCracken, of New York, is the [illegible] who wrote the letter to the President [illegible] scandalous account of our Ministers and [illegible] in Europe, of which Mr. Johnson [illegible] Mr. Seward, of which Mr. Seward [illegible] Mr. Motley, of which Mr. Motley [illegible] Mr. Seward, as to which the [illegible] and which we present to the public [illegible] George W. McCracken, of New York, is the man who peeped through the key-hole, who listened at the crack, who was up the chimney, and who has been dragged [illegible] the table by the nose. The Senate of the United States now has George W. McCracken, of New York, by that prominent feature which he has poked about so industriously, and if the Senate should pull it, before letting it go, we hope that honorable body will take Major De Boot's advice, and "pull it gently, gently, gently."

Who is George W. McCracken, of New York? We have looked in vain for his name in the New York, Brooklyn and Jersey City Directories. Nobody seems to know him, and probably nobody wants to know him. He is apparently the "utterly obscure person" that Mr. Sumner declared him. Indeed, it is doubtful whether there is such a person as George W. McCracken, of New York, for even the man vulgar enough to write such a letter would scarcely be stupid enough to sign his true name. George W. McCracken, of New York, is, possibly, assumed to conceal a man who, though not ashamed to do a dirty thing, was ashamed to be known as the author.

Yet, upon such a letter as this, from beginning to end malignant, disgusting, and unmistakably false, Mr. Seward could question the patriotism of a man so distinguished as Mr. Motley, and ask him for a confirmation of the grossest slanders. A letter which calls one of the representatives of the United States in Europe a flunkey, another a vulgar, ignorant fellow, another a common drunkard! It is surprising that Mr. Seward did not at once perceive that the President was insulted by such a letter, and inform Mr. Johnson of the fact. It is more surprising that he should have made it the basis of official action. When his correspondence with Mr. Motley was published, it was believed that, though nothing could excuse the tone of Mr. Seward's letter, he must have had some authority for supposing that gentleman to be no gentleman and a renegade. Yet, even this presumption, this apology for the Secretary, was unfounded. George W. McCraken, of New York, was all the authority Mr. Seward had. George W. McCracken, of New York, is the mean little mouse which has crawled out of this mountain of scandal, and hereafter, we greatly fear, when Mr. Seward utters his prophecies of wars ending in ninety days, the implicit faith of his countrymen will scarcely continue unless he distinctly affirms that it was not George W. McCracken, of New York, who told him so.

On Dits at Washington.—We clip the following items from the Washington Correspondence of the New York Tribune, under date of February 7th:

Gen. L. C. Baker, formerly Detective of the War Department, is now in the city, and to-day testified before the Judiciary Committee on the subject of impeachment. It is stated on high authority that he testified that he once had in his possession a letter written by Andrew Johnson, while Military Governor of Tennessee, addressed to Jefferson Davis, offering to identify himself and Tennessee with the Southern Confederacy on certain terms; that being doubtful of the genuineness of the signature to the letter, he showed the signature to the President's Private Secretary, who positively identified the handwriting.

General Grant's levee last evening drew together so large a crowd that numbers turned back on their arrival at the outer door. Among those thus unable to enter was Hon. Charles Sumner and other Senators. The principal lions of the evening were General Sheridan and George Peabody, the latter being under the escort of Hon. Robert C. Winthrop, of Boston.

George Peabody appeared on the floors of the two Houses to-day, accompanied by ex-Speaker Robt. C. Winthrop and Bishop McIlvaine of Ohio, and was warmly greeted by Senators and Members.

Col. Wm. S. Hillier is promised the appointment to-morrow as Internal Revenue Agent at New York, in place of McLean.

General Fremont and Charles G. Halpine arrived in the city to-day.

A Just Rebuke.—The New York Tribune, of the 8th, has the following account of a just rebuke to a "Tombs" lawyer:

Several months ago, Joseph Dowling came into possession of the knowledge that a certain lawyer, named E. J. Anderson, had stated to a person, then under arrest, that for $300 to be divided between Justice Joseph Dowling and Robert Johnson, the Clerk of the Court of Special Sessions, he could procure the immediate and unconditional release of the prisoner. Justice Dowling hearing this story, at once took steps to procure from the man to whom this statement had been made his sworn affidavit of the facts.

When next Anderson attempted to practice in the court presided over by Justice Dowling, that Magistrate refused to hear him, and informed him that he would not again be permitted to practice in that court until this matter of the false statement had been cleared up. For months since Anderson has not appeared in the Tombs Court till yesterday, when he, having watched his opportunity till Justice Dowling was absent from the court-room, undertook to make a motion as an attorney. Justice Kelly, however, who was on the bench, instantly silenced him, and informed him again that he cannot be heard in that court while the old matter remains unsettled and unexplained.

An Enlargement.—The small vein of the Florida, which ten days ago was at no point wider than twelve inches, and the average width of which was about eight inches, has enlarged suddenly to fifteen and twenty-two inches. This enlargement of the vein occurred in the eastern level, which is only twenty feet long and 200 feet below the surface. The best ore is believed to exist on the eastern side of the incline, although it might seem to be unreasonable to look for a better class of ore than is developed on the western side of the incline where the principal work has been done. At the point where the vein increased in size there is no appearance of disturbance, no deviation from its course or fault of any kind; but it is regular and loaded with beautiful and apparently rich mineral. If the ore shall prove to be as good a quality as that procured from the narrower portions of the vein, which yields $300 to the ton, its proceeds will fill the treasury of the company to plethora, and the Florida may be fairly ranked as a first class "Low Bridge."—Reveille, 12th inst.

The road is finished twenty miles beyond ... at Salina. All the iron and ties, bridges, &c., are at Chapman's creek. All the grading for one hundred miles west of Fort Riley will be finished the first of March, and the iron will be laid to Fort Ellsworth by the middle of May. An additional contract of grading for one hundred miles, will be let on the 14th of this month, and I believe the road will be opened to the neighborhood of Pond creek by the latter end of the fall season. As soon as the grass comes out the route will be carefully surveyed to Denver, previous to locating, while another party of engineers will explore the mountain ranges, for a practicable pass through the mountains, and at the same time a careful examination of the country between Denver and the Omaha road.

I have given a fair statement of the intentions of the Railroad Company, and after careful consideration of the whole subject, am satisfied we have the ability to carry out the programme.
